PLACEMENT INFORMATION

Job Description:

Hostess is communicating with the customer on seating arrangements. The hostess is a personal representation of the service and overall hospitality of the staff of the restaurant. While guests are waiting to be seated or waiting for take-out orders to be ready, it is the job of the hostess to ensure that the guests are made comfortable and kept informed of the status of their orders or wait times. In some restaurants, the hostess offers drinks to the guests who have to wait. The responsibilities of the hostess include monitoring the open dining sections of the restaurant for empty and cleaned tables, estimating wait times for guests, monitoring the guest waiting list, and ensuring that the needs of the guests are met while they are waiting. The hostess is often responsible for answering the telephone, booking reservations and moving tables together to accommodate large parties. As guests arrive, the hostess assesses the dining room and, if an accommodating table is available, escorts the guests to the dining room. In some restaurants, hostesses are also responsible for taking initial drink orders. Depending on individual restaurant policy, hostesses either fill the drink order or give the information to the responsible food server. Upon returning to the station, hostesses also make any necessary changes to the dining room occupancy chart.

Busser - cleaning off table and resetting the table for the next customer. The primary duty of a busser is to ensure that empty tables are ready to receive new guests. When a party departs, bussers remove dirty dishes, sanitize the table, clean the seats and if necessary, sweep or vacuum the surrounding floor. Other duties depend on the nature of the restaurant. In some restaurants, bussers add fresh place settings. Bussers sometimes assist servers by refilling drinks for guests or delivering trays of food to the table. Some bussers are responsible for delivering clean dishes to the cook or servers' station, setting up or breaking down a salad bar, emptying trash containers, refilling ice bins or performing general cleaning chores. In restaurants without runners, bussers sometimes perform many of a runner's duties.

Food Runner - delivery of food from the kitchen to the customer table. A runner's primary duty is to pick up food as soon as the cook or chef finishes the order, ensure that the order is complete and accurate, and then deliver the food to the dining room. In some establishments, the runner delivers the tray of food to the table and steps aside for the server to place the plates in front of the correct diner, but in other restaurants, the runner is responsible for placing the plates. Runners remove dirty dishes as diners complete each course or deliver condiments requested by guests. If needed, runners may bus tables or perform other tasks to assist servers.

You will be rotating through these three positions.
